It wasn’t a bad winter crop 2014 for Bolds, despite having a poor score of 30-40% shortage (between 1.2 & 1.8 billion tons). However for the June, it was an extremely poor performance. As a result it pushed our largest importer (India) upset due to sourcing prices. Although the current local edible oils prices are on a weak note, there is absolutely no intention/rush to liquidate stocks. Prices of bold are lower at present but not the lowest for the crop season. One may be able to make a touch & go deals if lucky with cheap prices, otherwise bulk deals are off the market till prices come back to where it was. Nearly 70% factories are either closed or working on other commodity with their Gold (Bold) stacked up.

With an abundant 2014 carryover stock of 500000 tons, the USA 2015 crop is all set to rise as a bumper crop of the peanut world beating Argentina in crop growth % in addition to $535/ton which brings other crop acreage into peanut farming too & that an ‘X’ factor in the $353/ton guarantee, the national average price could be factored. The 2015 crop is expected to be 15% more than 2014 crop. The current market however is in a limbo with limited supply & slack demand scenario. However the bland price demand seen excessively bullish & lead up arguably due to high Chinese prices. America exports to a tune of 200000 tons of peanuts per year. It is to be seen whether the good news from the US 2016 & 2017 crops are a boon or a bane in the months to come. We feel it is going to put US peanut farming into stress due to oversupply.

2015: It is the year for taking bold risks to achieve high returns. The US market is expected to show good supply due to the bumper crop harvested in 2014. Argentina, Chile, and Brazil will also be contributing to the supply. The prices are expected to remain stable due to ample supply. The demand is expected to remain strong due to the increasing demand from China and India. Therefore, the overall market is expected to remain stable with prices remaining steady.
